

Spectroscopic studies of the flavin prostetic groups

Krystyna Bystra

In this paper a survey of the experimental data obtained from spectroscopic studies of flavins and flavoproteins is presented. It is emphasized that spectroscopy methods are fundamental as studies of flavins and flavoproteins. Flavins are the fundamental coenzymes which play an important role in various enzymatic reactions causing the transfer of one or two electrons.